Time Inventors' Kabinet [TIK] is a collaborative experiment with time. For the last two years, a series of artists and thinkers have made an attempt to devise the future of an alternative and ecological time. This transdisciplinary project focuses on non-linearity and parallelism. All kinds of environmental information; be it a city, a field or beehive, can be transformed into sound and vision. Wind time maintains a distributed network that connects gardens in rural areas and cities, bringing them together in non-conventional relational databases, forming one long open green that has its own notion of time.

The TIK festival has rounded up the participants of this 2-year international media art project. All around the OKNO, iMAL and Q-02 spaces and on the rooftop garden you'll discover fresh air labs & methods for growing experimental media art. Come and visit the Kabinet of ecological wonders, or sit in the garden, and experiment with the wind!
